READINGS FOR SUNDAY
June 18, 2023
11th Sunday in Ordinary Time

First Reading: Exodus 19:2-6a
 Second Reading: Romans 5:6-11
 Gospel: Matthew 9:36-10:8

FOCUS: The kingdom of heaven is at hand.

God's heart has been moved with pity for us throughout salvation history. God sees us in our wanderings, like sheep without a shepherd. Our readings today weave together a tender saga of God's loving care as he works to gather us back unto himself.

LITURGY OF THE WORD: In the first reading, God reminds the Israelites of his care, exhorts them to keep his covenant, and promises to make them a kingdom of priests, a holy nation. In Paul's Letter to the Romans, we are reminded that we were reconciled, while we were still helpless, through Christ. In the Gospel, Jesus is moved with pity and sends his disciples to heal and preach.

Readings for next week, Sunday June 25, 2023

- 1) Jeremiah 20:10-13
- 2) Romans 5:12-15
- 3) Matthew 10:26-33

From Liturgical Commission Publishing, Lansing, MI

PARISH SACRIFICIAL GIVING

We are called to be laborers for the Lord. This week, find a way to be at service for God and fellow man: perhaps donate to the Catholic Ministries Appeal or food pantry or volunteer to mow the lawn for an elderly neighbor or take them food shopping.

Dear Friends:

"When I was a boy of 14, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be 21, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years." –Mark Twain

We often hear that the "generation gap," according to which parents and children see world from opposite points of view, is a relatively recent phenomenon. If Twain's comment is any indication, however, perhaps we are not so different from our forebears. The question is whether, amid the differences in perspective, we approach each other as allies or, sad to say, as adversaries. In a recent conversation with a friend, I shared the ideas of Alasdair MacIntyre, the Catholic ethicist who is something of a firebrand in contemporary philosophy. He tries to retrieve the concept of "virtue" in the moral development of young people. Key to this idea—and something that goes increasingly against the grain in American culture—is the willingness of the young to submit to the better judgment of those who are charged with their training. In short, MacIntyre believes in the "obligation to subordinate oneself to the best standard yet achieved." It does not mean that the "superior"—parent, teacher, coach, mentor, boss—is perfect; far from it. "Yet achieved" implies that progress can still be made. And yet, the novice must trust at the very least, that his guardian has something he lacks, and has his best interests at heart. If this is lacking, the relationship will be toxic. At best, the child learns nothing; at worst, he learns the wrong lesson.

Pope Francis emphasizes the central role a father plays in the life of his children:

God sets the father in the family so that by the gifts of his masculinity he can be close to his wife and share everything, joy and sorrow, hope and hardship. And to be close to his children as they grow – when they play and when they work, when they are carefree and when they are distressed...when they stray and when they get back on the right path... The fact is that children need to find a father waiting for them when they return home with their problems.

It would be easy to say that the responsibility lies solely with children to "snap to" the guidance of their fathers, but I think that the challenge goes both ways. In the military I remember an aphorism among the soldiers: "I don't care how much you know until I know how much you care." One cannot establish this kind of relationship all of a sudden, but only through a lifetime of effort, sacrifice, and deferment of one's personal interests.

This week, the Church celebrates the Solemnity of the Birth of John the Baptist this week even as our nation observes Father's Day. St. Augustine points out John's preeminence in the communion of saints as the only one, along with Jesus himself, whose birth is recorded in the New Testament. St. Luke's Gospel presents to readers a literary "diptych," whereby the circumstances of John's miraculous birth to aged parents are compared with those of Our Lord's supernatural birth to a virgin. The advanced age of Elizabeth and John reflect the Old Law that Jesus came to fulfill, and Zechariah's doubt is surpassed by the Virgin's faith. True, Zechariah ("God remembers") is an imperfect man, but in his roles as priest and father, he plays a vital part in the history of salvation. Along with Elizabeth ("God promises"), he raises John ("God is gracious"), who will prepare the way of the Lord.

This week's artwork is Bartolome-Esteban Murillo's "Birth of St. John the Baptist" (1655), a piece that does double duty for both the Solemnity and Father's Day. According to the Norton Simon Museum, the artist combines a master of chiaroscuro (light and shadow), saturated colors, and elegant naturalism to convey an idealized setting, while the individuals featured in the painting are ordinary "working class" people similar to Murillo's neighbors in Seville. The scene is rich with imagery. John's mother, Elizabeth, is attended to in bed, recovering from the exhaustion of labor, and his father Zechariah, has only just recovered his speech (for having doubted the message of the angel Gabriel) to deliver the famous Benedictus canticle (Luke 1:67-69). John's parents are placed in relative obscurity, while the focus is clearly on the infant himself as he emerges from his first bath. M. Louise Holert (Artpage) explains that the basin of water foreshadows his vocation as the Baptist who heralds the coming of Christ, while the red tablecloth nearby signifies the martyr's death by which he witnesses to his kinsman. Even the little puppy curled up on the chair symbolizes the "dogged" fidelity of the "last" of the Old Testament prophets to his duty.

Let us thank God for the example of our fathers who, despite their limitations, consistently put the welfare of their families above their own.

Faithfully,
Fr. Valentine

Prayer to
St. Michael the Archangel

Saint Michael Archangel Michael on the roof of the Basilique Notre Dame de Fourvière in Lyon, France.

St. Michael the Archangel, defend us in battle.
Be our protector against the wickedness and snares of the devil.
May God rebuke him,
we humbly pray;
And do Thou,
O Prince of the Heavenly Host,
by the power of God,
cast into hell Satan,
and all the evil spirits
who prowl about the world seeking the ruin of souls.

Jesus Sends out the Apostles Word-Find

Find the words in CAPITALS hidden in the puzzle.
Use the leftover letters to fill in the blanks at the end.

The names of the twelve apostles are these: first, Simon called PETER, and his brother ANDREW; JAMES, the son of Zebedee, and his brother JOHN; PHILIP and BARTHOLOMEW, THOMAS and MATTHEW the tax collector; James, the son of Alphaeus, and THADDEUS; SIMON from Cana, and JUDAS Iscariot who betrayed him.

JESUS sent out these twelve after INSTRUCTING them thus, "Do not go into PAGAN territory or enter a SAMARITAN town. Go rather to the lost SHEEP of the HOUSE of ISRAEL. As you go, make this PROCLAMATION: 'The KINGDOM of heaven is at hand.'

I P KINGDOM A J P

Cure the SICK, raise the dead, cleanse LEPERS, drive out DEMONS. Without cost YOU have received; without cost you are to GIVE."

Jesus sent His Apostles to the surrounding towns to preach and heal. Can you find the way to the nearby town for the Apostles?
